

Raleigh, NC, USA
June, 2017

Letter of Recommendation - Mr. Kacper Tylanda

To whom it may concern

I was approached by Mr. Kacper Tylanda in early April of 2017 with a proposal to completely redesign my website – The Newcastle United Blog – www.nufcblog.com.

It had needed to be redesigned for some time and I had the same looking site for over 10 years, so I knew it needed a complete redesign.

Kacper set about the complete redesign and was in constant communication to get my insight for the new site and in addition he suggested many things I hadn't even thought of.

Kacper worked extremely hard over those five weeks and lo and behold the site was ready to be deployed.

Bear in mind this was all done remotely, since I am located in the US and Mr. Tylanda is in Poland.

I was somewhat concerned about the launch since things rarely go well the first time out of the box.

But I was amazed about the smoothness of the transition and certainly the readers were extremely impressed with the new design and I was simply inundated with positive email.

Kacper deserves all the credit for that and I found him to be courteous, very hardworking, reliable and receptive to change.

That's in addition to really knowing his stuff, which allowed him to move the blog from looking very old fashioned to being absolutely state of the art.

I would gladly recommend Kacper for this kind of work to anybody considering employing Mr. Tylanda.

If necessary people can contact me at my email - esharrison@yahoo.com - if they want any more information or details about the great job Kacper did on The Newcastle United Blog.

Without hesitation I recommend Mr Tylanda.

Edward Harrison PhD

Retired former IBM Director and Managing Principal
IBM Global Services